OBJECTIVES

The British Art Medal Society and the British Art Medal Trust encourage, develop and support the practice and study of medallic art in the UK and elsewhere.

ORGANISATION

The Trust, a UK registered charity (no. 288869), publishes THE MEDAL and other works, and organises educational events. The Society commissions and issues medals for sale to members and non-members, holds meetings and social functions, and provides the other services listed below.

PUBLICATIONS

THE MEDAL is published in September and March and is received by all members. Other publications are listed overleaf.

MEDALS

The Society issues several art medals each year, in September and March. Each medal is available for eighteen months, but the edition closes earlier if 100 medals are sold. (Some of the more expensive medals are issued in smaller editions.) Medals from past issues, within the declared edition, can be bought if any are available. All medals are illustrated on the Society's website: www.bams.org.uk

OTHER SERVICES

These include advising on how to commission and produce a medal, sponsoring medal competitions, providing a forum for artists, and organising exhibitions, lectures, conferences and visits.

MEMBERSHIP

The Membership year begins on 1 July. Anyone who joins will be enrolled for the current membership year and will receive the issues of THE MEDAL published in September of that year and the following March. There are three categories of membership: Ordinary Members pay £20 per annum to the Society, receive THE MEDAL and must buy at least one medal each membership year.

Associate Members pay £35 per annum to the Trust if in Europe or £40 per annum outside Europe. They receive THE MEDAL and are not obliged to buy any medals but may do so at the members' price. A reduced (one half) rate of donation is available for full time students on application to the Membership Secretary.

Corporate Members pay £50 per annum to the Society and receive THE MEDAL. Individuals who belong to the institution concerned may enjoy the benefits of membership by arrangement with the Membership Secretary.
